TLC—The Treatment and Learning Centers Welcomes New Board Member

Rockville, Md.— TLC—The Treatment and Learning Centers, a local, private, non-profit agency that provides educational, therapeutic, and vocational services to children and adults with disabilities welcomes new Board member James R. LaGrone, CPA/PFS. Mr. LaGrone was elected to TLC's Board of Trustees on January 24, 2007. Richard Pavlin, Executive Director of TLC states, "Jim brings to the Board an accounting background that should prove valuable to the Board Finance Team and our finance staff."

For more than 30 years, Mr. LaGrone has been actively involved in civic and charitable organizations located in Montgomery County and throughout the state. In partnership with Betty Mae Kramer (wife of the former County Executive, Sid Kramer) and Chuck Short, Mr. LaGrone worked to establish the Volunteer Partnership for Montgomery County. Mr. LaGrone has been an active member and/or served as an officer and board member for numerous other professional organizations and committees.

Mr. LaGrone is a CPA with a Personal Financial Specialist designation and he is a Registered Investment Advisor. Throughout his career, Mr. LaGrone has worked with numerous small to mid-size businesses and local and national non-profit organizations. Mr. LaGrone and his wife have two grown children and five grandchildren. They enjoy traveling, golf, fishing and skiing.
